Think out of the Box!

Is it an apple, or a phone? Is it a yellow circle, or the sun? Is it a person, or the beginning of a story?

It is, in fact, the beginning of the story, for now... That person, plus, many some others in a 7 days training course which aims are developing all the potential of youth workers in creativity area by stimulating them to explore their limits and the cooperation with others. Being aware of the potential of each one, working on their self-development in order to empower them to be effective and innovative, when working with young people in non-formal environment.

At the heart of this process, there is all an 'experiential education' and learning by doing.

Sharing 7 days' life with many different cultures, points of view and ideas, we will discover many methods which we will use to active involvement of participants, both in a physical and mental way.

Participants will experience this training course through challenges and participation in group. They will be also tested in their leadership skills and their impact on youngsters.

Creative minds involved in this training will work together to discover, create and invent, being innovative in every task and discussion they will have. Simple materials as tools, team work, dynamism; individual & group reflections, background experiences, self-assessment, everything will be important for our project conclusions. Also theoretical analyses linked with the reality will account for the overall methods used during the training course.

The Course is included on non-formal education.

AIMS AND OBJECTIVES:

 To explore the potential of youth workers during process of creating.

 To explore the benefits of creativity - be innovative and finalize the different ideas.

 To emphasize and support that different is not obligatory something bad.

 To understand why creativity is important in nowadays life.

 To support youth workers and youth leaders in the personal self-development and their leadership competences.

 To understand the theory connected with the topic to end up with the practice and experiment. Reflect about it, about some techniques and group dynamics.

 To encourage participants to understand and trust their potential and their ability to inspire young people.

 To discover the value of the Youth in Action Programme as a tool for development of young people.

 To link the experiences during the training with the daily work situation.
